

For the prevention and cure of
LIQUOR AND MALIGNANT FEVERS
is recommended
HAN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS
This Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

It is not indeed presumptuously proclaimed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary
remedy has, under Providence, preserved
lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

The operation of these pills is perfectly safe, and so to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.
They are excellently adapted to carry
off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the system—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual constiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and could be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir.
A sovereign remedy for colds, obsteinate coughs, asthma, sore throats, carries, and approaching consumptions.— To persons who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small
that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative.
Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of Nervous Disorders Violent cramps in Consumptions the stomach and Loss of spirits back Indigestion
Impurity of blood Melancholy
Hysterical affection Gout in the stomach Inward weakness Pains in the limbs and debility Relaxations, etc.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch.
Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Hahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaster.
An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion.
So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals, the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes of the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflammatory redness, scurfs, tetter, ringworms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c.

Hahn's genuine Eye Water.
A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of nature weakness or of accident.

Tooth-Ache Drops.
The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops
For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

At the place of sale pamphlets may be had gratis, describing cures performed by the above medicines; the number, importance and respectability of which, fully justify every article of this advertisement.

Fan-Sash Making.
METAL FAN-SASHES, of various descriptions, will be made by the subscriber, at his shop, lower end of Duke street. The want of a Metal Fan-Sash Manufacture in Alexandria, has hitherto been severely felt by builders and others, who have been compelled to make use of wood, which is neither elegant nor durable. The various forms into which the metal can be shaped have given it a decided superiority, and the difference in the price is very trifling. The subscriber has been at considerable expense in procuring the necessary preparations, and relies on public enterprise for success in the undertaking.
Gentlemen in the country, by sending the dimensions of their sashes, can have them made at the same price as in town.

SONG.

Come, dear Amanda: quit the town,
And to the rural hamlets fly;
Behold, the wintry storms are gone,
A gentle radiance glads the sky.
The birds awake, the flowers appear,
Earth spreads a verdant couch for thee,
'Tis joy and music all we hear!
This love and beauty all we see!
Come let us mark the gradual spring.
How peep the buds, the blossom blows,
Till Philomel begins to sing.
And perfect May to spread the rose.
Let us secure the short delight,
And wisely crop the blooming day;
For soon, too soon, it will be night;
Arise, my love, and come away.

Original Criticism.

CHILD HAROLD'S PILGRIMAGE: BY LORD BYRON. CANTO IV. MURRAY,
LONDON. PP. 128.

It has been remarked by the greatest of the English critics that mankind are disposed to estimate the merit of a writer, when living by his worst productions, and when dead by his best. This rule of adjudication, by which posterity compensated to our old writers for the tardy and penurious applause of their contemporaries, has, of late, in the former of its branches been reversed; and the excellence of one literary effort now not only reflects a radiance on every succeeding enterprise of its author, but blinds the beholder to its defects. "Extremes in literature, as in morals, are dangerous." The two contrariant opinions just cited are equally injurious to their objects;—for it may be doubted whether the infelicity be greater of the adventurer whose energies were repressed by the severe maxims which fashioned the taste of the last century, or of him whose desert in one instance creates the partial sympathy of the public for his renewed endeavours. If the one was sometimes repelled from honourable designs by the rigour or apathy of his masters, the other is not unfrequently urged by a prodigality of praise to essays beyond his strength. The progress of such a favourite is attended too with this farther unhappiness—that should the attempt to which he has been thus invited end in failure, or in only partial success, the admiration of his judges cools into indifference, and at no very distant period is chilled into contempt. They solace their vanity in expiating their former extravagant rating of his merits by a retraction as absolute and as unjust. If this result does not obtain, another will, which, though less afflictive to the writer, is equally indicative of an infirm judgment on the part of his readers—we mean a determination induced by one good performance to be pleased with all its successors of the same family. It is needless to be mentioned how pleasingly an author is lulled into security or betrayed into negligence by such the accommodating dispositions of the public.

Many of these remarks are applicable to the noble bard whose latest production is the subject of the ensuing examination. Of the changes in public sentiment, to which we have alluded, he has hitherto had no experience. The causes which naturally and ordinarily induce them were, in his instance, resisted by others scarcely less powerful—by the eccentric and romantic traits of his character, by his rank, and by the peculiar circumstances in which his genius was first developed. These circumstances have been so often told, that it would be impertinent to tell them again. Let it suffice for us to remark that much of lord Byron's poetical merit is imputable to the severe chastisement which his earliest publication, "The Hours of Idleness," received from the ministers of critical justice. His pride has doubtless been usefully stimulated by learning from experience that the supplanting technicalities of a "minor" constituted no claim to public favour, and that the imbecility of his first effort received no pellation from his youth and no dignity from his rank.

In the introductory cantos of Harold the author's genius surmounted the difficulties of the most embarrassing species of English versification. It was further illustrated in two very material respects—in giving poetical interest to moral, and sometimes to even metaphysical speculations, and in portraying the physical and classical charms of Greece in a manner which no previous traveller into that country had attained. The exact and graphic contraposition of its antient to its present state, natural and civil, was pleasing not only to the scholar, but to the merely sensitive reader—it provoked vulgar as well as Athenian sympathies. Curiosity, therefore, rejoiced to learn that the writer after being driven from home by domestic calamity, was sojourning in Italy—a land made dear to memory and to feeling by its pristine power, glory and genius, and its present unaided, unpitied impotence. When however the Childe again appeared, it was seen that he had wandered through less sacred regions.

The impatience with which the public has expected the Italian portion of the pilgrimage is at length terminated by the performance that we now undertake to consider.

The present canto has not quite so much the appearance of a tour as its predecessors. The transitions from one place to another, are not so regularly recorded nor so distinctly marked, and the reader more frequently than in the three other parts has his attention withdrawn from the country to the "Pilgrim." The poet unnecessarily regarding the leading maxim of the epic, forbids us to attend him step by step in his journey, but carries us at once "in medias res" to Rome itself. After wandering through it in silence and sadness, the proud, selfish and melancholy Harold reclines on the mausoleum of Hadrian, and expresses the sensations imparted by his ramble, in language less gorgeous, but perhaps more affecting, than that which had shed lustre on the ruins of Athens.

A few stanzas from this part of the book we shall transcribe, postponing any observation on them till we come to another part of the poem.

After apostrophising the city, he thus proceeds:

To tell the beauty of thy buildings fair, Adorn'd with purest gold and precious stones;
To tell thy riches and endowments rare,
To tell thy forces matchable by none,
Were wasted toil, that few would now believe,
And with rehearsing would me more agrieve.

Wasted it is, as if it never were;
And all the rest that thee so honour'd made,
And of the world admired every where,
Is torn'd to smoke that doth to nothing fade,
And of that brightness now appears no shade,
But grisly shades—such as do haunt in hell.

With fearful fiends that in deep darkness dwell.

Where thy high steeples whilom used to stand,
On which the lordly falcon wont to tower,
There now is but a heap of lime and sand,
Where the "civetta" builds her baleful tower.

And thy fair temples now are turn'd to dust,
And overgrown with black oblivion's rust.

The author, or the mysterious personage with whom public opinion has identified him, is next found at Magliano. Recollecting the singular incident recorded by Guicciardini of the two brothers who, during the campaigns of the famous Lautrech, deserted the imperial service and inhabited, for three years, unknown and unsuspected, the caverns near Magliano, he employs several stanzas in describing their mode of life.

The initial one we shall transcribe—
For underneath the ground their way was made, Thro' hollow caves, that no man mote
For the thick shrubs, which did them always shade.

From view of living wight and cover'd
But darkness dead, and endless night did hover.

Thro' all the inward parts, wherein they dwelt:
No lighten'd was with window nor with But with continual taper gleam, which dealt
A doubtful sense of things, not so well

ALEXANDRIA: FRIDAY, MARCH 15, 1818.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Thursday, March 12, 1818.

The first half of yesterday's sitting in the house of representatives was wasted (wasted I may truly call it) in discussing the admissibility of the petition of on Vincente Pazo, who represented himself in it as an agent of Venezuela and Buenos Ayres. The Speaker, to whom it had been directed, laid it before the house, and Mr. Colston moved that it should be read in order to ascertain the nature of its contents. It was accordingly read, and Mr. Forsyth moved the house that it should not be received. Which motion was supported by Mr. Lowndes in a very able speech. A pretty animated debate ensued, in which Mr. Robertson, Mr. Tucker of Va. Mr. Bassett, Mr. Trimble, and Mr. Johnson of K. opposed the motion—and Mr. Forsyth and Mr. Lowndes were joined by Mr. Pitkin, Mr. Poindexter, Mr. Pindall, Mr. Mills, Mr. Ball, Mr. Sergeant, and Mr. Cobb, in supporting it.

The ground taken by the latter was the impudent and presumptuous character of the petition, which contained the most daring expressions of censure on the president for his wise and meritorious conduct in suppressing the establishments at Amelia Island and Galvestown, which in truth deserved high praise.

Had the president acted otherwise, Mr. Poindexter said he would have been extremely culpable—for those men whom he dislodged, were not only mischievous and dangerous to others, but were doing great injury to the Patriot cause. If any individual had any wrong to complain of, let him come forward as such (it was said)—but nothing of this kind could be received from the agent of a foreign people, particularly in the shape of an aspersion on the chief magistrate, and grounded on that an appeal against him to the legislature:—between such a character and the United States, the house could not adjudicate. Could that house say that the president of the United States had done wrong and that a foreign agent had done right in accusing him?—It was altogether the most impudent application that had ever been made, and was indeed an appeal from the chief magistrate to the people, had the accredited minister of a foreign government been guilty of it. A motion should be made to send him out of the country. When Mr. Jackson was sent away, what was the cause of it? Why his appealing from the president to the people. The meanest of our citizens were entitled to petition; but it was not the business of congress to legislate for the whole human family—over foreigners they had no jurisdiction, nor did they owe them any protection. Even on the supposition that the president had acted wrong, (which was not true) was that house to receive charges against him from foreign agents? This petitioner applied to the president for redress, and was, as he justly ought to be, disappointed—he then appealed to the legislature, and his next appeal would probably be to the people.

A motion was made to lay the petition on the table, but this was opposed by several, who protested against its being entertained at all; and particularly by Mr. Forsyth, who put the question to the house, would they permit any foreigner to suppose that the executive of the United States was acting in contradiction to the wishes of the people? In the case of the French minister GEMET, who had appealed to the people from the chief magistrate, what was the consequence? Genet was very popular, yet, on his offering that insult to the president he was not able to stand the shock, and was put down. His office, however, was only a barren threat—this was a threat carried into execution, and the offender endeavored to make the house of representatives his instrument.

Extraordinary as it may appear, this petitioner was not without his advocates in the house. What a picture this offers to the world—what an example is this to future foreign agents and ministers, to appeal whenever they think proper from one branch of our government to another. That there was one in the house who would listen to such an insult is a most lamentable circumstance; I am sorry, however, to say that there were 28. The question for laying on the table was negatived. And the question on Mr. Forsyth's motion, that the petition should not be received, being taken by yeas and nays, was carried by 137 to 28.

INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

The house then in committee resumed the consideration of this measure, when Mr. Sawyer moved to rise and report progress, and made a speech on the occasion. Mr. Jones of Tennessee and Mr. Colston both spoke—the tendency of their observations being to show that the house had constitutional power to make roads, canals, &c. And Mr. Hugh Nelson spoke long and earnestly to dissuade the house from immolating the liberties of the country and the rights of the states, which they should do by adopting this measure. It was past five o'clock when Mr. Nelson stopped, and the house adjourned.

IN CONGRESS, MARCH 9:

The Speaker laid before the House the following letter from the Secretary of the Treasury:

Treasury Department, 7
March 6, 1818.

SIR: In conformity with the provisions of the act of congress of the 3d of March, 1817, entitled "An act to incorporate the subscribers to certain banks in the District of Columbia, and to prevent the circulation of the notes of unincorporated associations within the said District," I have the honor to state that the President and Directors of the Banks embraced by the said act, have deposited in this department statements of the situation of the said Banks respectively, on the 1st day of January, 1818.

From an attentive examination of these statements, I am of opinion that the concerns of these banks have been prudently conducted; that there is no just reason to doubt their solvency, and that there exists no cause of danger arising from any kind of mismanagement.

I have the honor, &c.

WM. H. CRAWFORD.

Hon. H. Clay,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
The report was ordered to lie on the table.

New York, March 9.

FROM BUENOS AYRES.
We learn by the Globe, that the force under Gen. Artigas, at Colonia, had rebelled against their leader; and 1000 troops had embarked at Buenos Ayres to join the rebel party. Two brigades, two schooners, and two transports, had arrived from Montevideo, with troops and were at anchor off the harbor. Gen. San Martin was on his march to Lima, having been victorious throughout Chili. There was no sale for American produce at Buenos Ayres, when the Globe sailed, which was on the 21st of Dec.

By a gentleman from Hartford we learn, that the detachments of Georgia militia were organized on the 15th, and encamped on the south side of the Ocmulgee. Colonel Homer V. Milton was elected to command the lower, and capt. John E. Little (of Wilkes) the upper regiment. On the day following six companies, under the command of major Fanning, assist div. insp. marched forward to Fort Early. On Saturday evening last the rear of the army was crossing Four Mile creek, being that distance from Hartford. A junction with the Tennessee detachment was expected to take place at Fort Scott on the 1st of next month.

The Indians, in the mean time, continue their horrid cruelties. A large family of the name of Grantham are said to have been recently murdered on the frontier, between Hartford and the Alabama; and it is reported that two boys have been killed near Fort Scott.

[Georgia Journal, Feb. 24.]

Extract of a letter to the editors of the Boston Patriot & Chronicle, from an officer on board the U. S. brig Prometheus, dated Savannah, Feb. 18.

On the 8th of this month we left the squadron at Amelia, and off Cumberland Island, and proceeded on a cruise. The squadron consisted, when we left, of the U. S. ship John Adams, commodore Henry; brig Enterprise, Lt. Com. Kearney, at Amelia; the Saratoga, capt. Elton; Lynx, capt. Madison; gun vessel 168, captain McKall, near Cumberland Island.

After we had been out a few days, we fell in with the Spanish ship Marie Josepha, which had been captured by the Buenos Ayrean schooner General St. Martin. The prize-master requested capt. Finch to take charge, on account of a mutiny existing on board, and he being in a measure destitute of provisions, and his sails much injured. We put Messrs. Prentiss and Russell with men on board of her, and saw her safe into port this morning.

When we left Amelia, it was said that general Aury had received orders to depart from thence as soon as possible. He is sitting out a vessel to carry him off and I presume all his compatriots in arms.

I really feel much for this man. His course of conduct, whilst commanding at Amelia has not been of that nature that we so frequently have heard spoken of in the United States. I have been in company with him, and I think his manners are prepossessing; but I must say, his external appearance is much against him.

A letter from Lisbon of the 16th of January mentions that bread stuffs had risen in price in that place.

Gibraltar, January 5.

An official dispatch has been received from Oran, dated 18th of last month, by which it appears that the Plague continues to desolate Bona and Constantine, and that it still rages in Algiers, where the deaths amount to 50 a day. We are particularly sorry to add, that this dreadful disease has spread to the towns of Bldha, M. dia and Mina, all of them situated to the westward of Algiers, and the last within 25 leagues of Oran, no fewer than 10 individuals being daily carried off in each of those places. In consequence of this unpleasant intelligence, and the malady being expected shortly to extend to Oran, (it even it does not already exist there) the measures of precaution will be enforced with increased rigor in this port.

The dispatch further confirms the intelligence of the Dey of Algiers having withdrawn to the citadel of Casprie, and ascribes this determination to the many plots framed by the Janissaries against his life. The Dey has also dismissed the Turkish soldiers who composed his guard and black troops are now doing duty about his person.

About a month before the date of the dispatch, the Bey of Oran had been strangled, the second in command thrown into confinement, and all the principal officers changed. The new Bey, a Turk of the name of Cassan, arrived at Oran from Algiers on the 6th of December, with a retinue of 5000 persons. Twelve of his soldiers had died of the plague on the road.

The Algerine squadron, which had gone to sea on the 27th September with the plague on board, returned to Algiers on the 19th of November, and the ships were immediately laid up.

TREMENDOUS FLOOD.

In consequence of the thaw which commenced on Friday, followed by a heavy rain on Saturday night and the whole of Sunday, the Hudson river rose to an uncommon height. And yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, the ice began to move in the river opposite this city. Two or three small buildings on the dock near the upper part of the city, were swept away. The ice, however, stopped moving in about twenty minutes.

At about two o'clock in the afternoon, during which time the water had been continually and rapidly rising, the ice again started and was hurried down the stream with tremendous force and rapidity. At 4 o'clock the water had risen in the lower parts of the town to an alarming height. The lower parts of Patroon, Columbia, Steuben, State, Hudson, Hamilton, and Lydius-streets, and Maiden Lane, were deluged for several rods. Quay and Dock streets were impassable, even with boats, in consequence of the ice, and for filthy roads in South Market-street, the water was several feet, and in many places the current excessively rapid.

During a considerable period the scene was terrible, almost beyond description. But few boats could be obtained to render assistance—the cellars and lower stories of houses were filled with water, and females were seen in various directions, looking with trembling anxiety from the windows and crying for succor.

We have not heard that any lives were lost, although a considerable number of wood buildings were crushed to pieces, and some of them buried with irresistible force, down the impetuous torrent. About one third of Mr. Gibbon's market, at the upper part of the town, was swept away. An extensive lumber yard in the Colony, was greatly injured, and a number of buildings at that place, occupied by stone cutters and blacksmiths, were entirely destroyed. Also a slaughter house, belonging to a Mr. Kimmitt, containing a hundred and fifty barrels prime beef for the Navy, all of which was lost.

We have not had time to learn the extent of the damages, or the amount of the losses sustained—but they must be very great.—It has been impossible to have any communication with Greenbush (opposite this city,) but we perceived that several buildings were either crushed to pieces, or greatly injured.—One very large store in particular, was observed to be moved from its site, and turned completely round. The ice is ed like mountains upon our docks. At Schoenady, we learn that considerable damage was sustained, in consequence of the rising of the river. A splendid bridge at that place, destroyed, but this report we believe without foundation. A large two story house, situated near the river, we learned was burnt, in consequence of the water communicating to a quantity of unstacked lime in the lower story.

We have heard of no damage upon Hudson, above this city, although many planks and boards were discovered in the river, and we observed a small building near the middle of the river float down the current. The ice stopped 6 o'clock—but when this paper went press, the water continued rising.

During the confusion and alarm which frequently prevails on these occasions singular instances of preservation occurred. In one of the houses in which water was rushing in powerful torrents woman anxious for her safety, effected her escape after several attempts. She had hardly reached a place of safety when she recollected that her infant had been left slumbering in the cradle, in a room from which she just had escaped terrified and almost distracted, the distressed and anxious mother returned to the view of rescuing the child; the water had filled the room, and the cradle floating on a cake of ice, found its way down the current to a place of safety and where "nestling curious, there an infant lay" unhurt.

The sudden dissolution of a body of ice so extensive—the swelling of the river, and rushing of the impetuous currents—presented together a picture a fully grand and impressive though a somewhat threatening and destructive in aspect.

From the N. York Daily Advertiser.
The Gazette of St. John's Porto Rico gives the following extract from a Russian paper.—Mr. Langsdorf, a Russian Counsellor, in a letter from Rio Janeiro dated 30th of June, (it is presumed 1817 for the year is omitted) says, "In December last year, I made a tour into the interior of that country, (Brazil) directly my principal attention to the Province Minas Giermes, where gold mines were supposed to be—I say supposed, for there are no gold mines in this province; but at a single glance of the eye, you perceive the whole surface to be covered with gold dust, of greater or less fineness.—From the collection of this dust knew a few persons, who in a small space and in about twenty years time, have moved about three million of crusado of gold. But notwithstanding this abundance of gold, and the rich mines of diamonds which this country possesses, must be acknowledged to be one of the most miserable in the world. The inhabitants occupied in the sole pursuit of gold neglect the culture, and of course less the good sterile, although no soil can be naturally more rich or climate more genial.

These unfortunate people find themselves at once possessed of immense wealth, and in want of the most common and necessary articles of subsistence which they are compelled to seek from elsewhere, and in default of which supply these new Midas are at times nearly reduced to starvation.

A single person can easily in an hour time collect in gold dust, to a value equivalent to two florins, but this done, it is sufficient for two or three days support, he resigns himself to indolence and idling, from which state of apathy, necessity only can rouse him. I have particularly mentioned the places where diamonds are found, because my hurried excursions did not allow me sufficient time to explore them. As there are no mines actually in operation in the province, I have been only able to collect a few fossils, and of those but what presented on the surface. Besides gold dust—this district produces more iron than any other part of Brazil, not mines but in whole mountains, the mineral also possessing magnetic properties and so rich in quality as to yield from 80 to 90 pounds of pure metal from 10 pounds of ore. Most astonishing indeed are the immense masses of this article which form the principal mountains of the country. I spent three months in this expedition, and had occasion to admire the quick vegetation verdure, and abundance of rare plants, trees and shrubs. Zoological pursuits were unfortunately made in summer, which experience taught me to be an unsuitable season. I shall therefore prosecute them no longer, and hope to be more successful. I conclude with a determination to explore the mountains of Caraca and Pinda, which surmount the level of the 7,000 feet, where I expect to find many new genera of plants, and particular of the Alpine kind.

The sudden dissolution of a body of ice so extensive—the swelling of the river, and rushing of the impetuous torrents—presented together a picture awfully grand and impressive though seldom so threatening and destructive in its aspect.

From the N. York Daily Advertiser.
The Gazette of St. John's Porto Rico, gives the following extract from a Bremen paper—Mr. Langsdorf, a Russian Counsellor, in a letter from Rio Janeiro, dated 30th of June, (it is presumed 1817, for the year is omitted) says, in December last year, I made a tour into the interior of that country, (Brazil) directing my principal attention to the Province of Minas Gernes, where gold mines were supposed to be—I say supposed, for there are no gold mines in this province; but at a single glance of the eye, you perceive the whole surface to be covered with gold dust, of greater or less fineness.—From the collection of this dust I knew a few persons, who in a small space and in about twenty years time, have amassed about three million of crusades of gold. But notwithstanding this abundance of gold, and the rich mines of diamonds which this country possesses, it must be acknowledged to be one of the most miserable in the world. The inhabitants occupied in the sole pursuit of gold, neglect the culture, and of course leave the ground sterile, although no soil can be naturally more rich or climate more genial.

A single person can easily in an hour's time collect in gold dust, to a value equivalent to two florins, but this done, as it is sufficient for two or three days support, he resigns himself to indolence and dozing, from which state of apathy, necessity only can rouse him. I have not particularly mentioned the places where diamonds are found, because my hurried excursions did not allow me sufficient time to explore them. As there are no mines actually in operation in this province, I have been only able to collect a few fossils, and of those but what presented on the surface. Besides gold in dust—this district produces more iron than any other part of Brazil, not in mines but in whole mountains, the mineral also possessing magnetic properties and so rich in quality as to yield from 80 to 90 pounds of pure metal from 100 pounds of ore. Most astonishing indeed are the immense masses of this article, which form the principal mountains of the country. I spent three months in this expedition, and had occasion to admire the quick vegetation verdure, and abundance of rare plants, trees and shrubs. My zoological pursuits were unfortunately made in summer, which experience has taught me to be an unsuitable season.—I shall therefore prosecute them next spring, and hope to be more successful. I conclude with a determination to explore the mountains of Carana and Pinda, which surround the level of the sea 7000 feet; where I expect to find many new genera of plants, and particularly of the Alpine kind.

They are also of infinite service to those in the coloring line, who make long voyages at sea, and are exposed to unhealthy climates; a preventive against contagious disorders—they are also a very pleasant and are particularly recommended for the use of Taverns and Public houses, as well as private families.

James Kennedy & Son,
RESPECTFULLY inform the public that they have just received from LEE'S MEDICINE STORE,
No. 46, Maiden lane, New-York a fresh supply of the following valuable MEDI-CINES:
Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges.

Which have within sixteen years past cured an immense number of persons of both sexes of every age and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from WORMS, and from obstructions or foulness in the stomach and bowels.
This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles so commonly complained of as operating with violence; on the contrary a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and constitution. It contains nothing but what is perfectly innocent & is so mild in its operation that it cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old should no worms exist in the body; but will without pain or griping cleanse the stomach and bowels of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humours and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and mildest purgative that can be used on any occasion.
Description of Worms, and the symptoms by which they are known.
Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds viz.—The Terres or large round worm; the Ascari-des or small maw-worm; the Cucurbi-tine or short flat white worm; and lastly, the Tenia or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat; convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food and sometimes voracious; purging with slimy and fœtid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; pains in the head and thighs and lowness of spirits; slow fever with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face bloated and flushed.
Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectually prevent "the vomiting and purging of children"—a dreadful disorder, which annually destroys thousands of the infant part of our citizens. It is likewise the mildest and most certain remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number when in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases.
Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.
The Restorative Powder for the Teeth and Gums.

For the prevention and cure of
BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVERS
is recommended
HAIN'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS
THIS Medicine has been attended
with a degree of success highly grateful
to the inventor's feelings, in several parts of the West India and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.
Facts of this conclusive nature speak more in favour of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy founded on mere assertion.
It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further, that in the earlier stages of these diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases estimated desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.
They are excellently adapted to carry
off superfluous bile and prevent its mor-
bid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration
and thereby prevent colds which are often of fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-aches—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.
They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

covery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the pro-

moves the most cruel disorders to which
children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small
that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Fan-Sash Making.
METAL FAN-SASHES, of various descriptions, will be made by subscriber, at his shop, lower end of Du-street. The want of a Metal Fan-Sash Manufacture in Alexandria, has hitherto been severely felt by builders and others, who have been compelled to import from New-York, which is neither elegant nor durable. The various forms into which the metal can be shaped have given it decided superiority, and the difference the price is very trifling. The subscriber has been at considerable expence in perfecting the necessary preparations, and relies on public enterprise for success in the undertaking.
Gentlemen in the country, by sending the dimensions of their sashes, can be assured that they will be made at the same price as if in town.
